

✓ Do you have a 5/10/20 Retirement Plan?

When it comes to retirement planning, many Americans have yet to put pen to paper – nearly 40% have given little or no thought to financial planning for retirement.¹ Having a plan with specific goals can make a big difference in how you spend your golden years.

Get started with these recommendations from NAPFA-Registered Financial Advisors:

If you're 20 years away from retirement:

- Create an emergency fund of 3-6 months of living expenses to avoid tapping into your 401(k) or home equity in the event of an emergency.
- Boost your earning potential and benefits package by contributing the maximum annual amount to your 401(k), or at least enough to receive a full employer match.
- Ensure you have a diversified investment portfolio so that you are investing for growth and distributing your assets across taxable, tax-deferred and tax-free sources. If you have multiple retirement or brokerage accounts, now is a good time to consolidate them.

Maintaining an emergency fund as you age is important because job seekers over age 55 are typically unemployed for longer than younger counterparts.²

If you're 10 years away from retirement:

- Brainstorm any big-ticket financial commitments you anticipate in the next 10 years and consider how these items might affect your retirement timeline.
- Review your estate documents to ensure the language is still accurate. For example, are the named trustees still alive and capable? Your estate documents should include items such as: a will, power of attorney, a living will, a healthcare proxy and possibly a revocable trust.
- Reallocate your investment portfolio based on your earnings timeline with a focus on performance, risk and expenses. Decide when – or if – you should shift to a more conservative asset allocation.

A common big-ticket expense? Caring for a loved one – more than family caregivers each year provide unpaid care for aging parents, spouses and other loved ones.³

If you're 5 years away from retirement:

- Make a list of retirement “needs” and “wants.” If you do not have enough savings for all your “needs,” make a five-year plan to increase your funds.
- Double-check your reported Social Security earnings and resolve any discrepancies now. Explore your Social Security claiming options and make sure you understand the timing of applying for benefits.
- Run tax projections periodically to ensure you take advantage of opportunities the IRS provides, such as ROTH IRA conversion strategies.

#1 FEAR

What's keeping retirees up at night? Their biggest fear is outliving their retirement savings, according to NAPFA advisors. Identifying what you need vs. want will help decrease anxiety.

A financial advisor can help you create a retirement plan that fits your lifestyle and needs. But, how do you choose the right advisor?

People with a plan are
